

1 How to reach Weingarten

1.1 General information

Please note: Ravensburg and Weingarten are two separate towns but located right next to each other! The university is located in Weingarten but the nearest railway station is in Ravensburg.

- Airport choice:
 - Fly to Stuttgart or to Munich, preferably Stuttgart: it is closer, less expensive, and the train connections are less complicated!
 - Zurich is also an option (similar distance as to Stuttgart and Munich, but it is in Switzerland and it depends on your nationality whether you are allowed to transit through Switzerland or not. For specific information check here <https://www.auswaertiges-amt.de/de/ReiseUndSicherheit/schweizsicherheit/206208>
- The closest railway station is in Ravensburg!

Attention: There is NO proper railway station in “our” Weingarten (postal code 88250), but there is a railway station in another Weingarten in Baden near Karlsruhe (postal code 76356) about 250 km away. Make sure you look for the direction to the “right” Weingarten (further down South, closer to Lake Constance/ Bodensee).

- Where to get a train ticket?
 - “Fahrkartenschalter”/ticket counter at train stations and at the ticket machines in the station and on the platforms (see picture on the right →)
 - Online ticket:
via <https://www.bahn.com/en/view/index.shtml>
 - Learn more about online/mobile tickets:
<https://int.bahn.de/en/booking-information/online-ticket>

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact the information / service counters of Deutsche Bahn at any time.

In Germany, it is not allowed to travel without a ticket! Tickets cannot be purchased in trains (exception: from the bus drivers in buses). Those who do not have a ticket and get caught will have to pay a penalty of € 60!

- Information about train connections in Germany can be found on <http://www.bahn.de>
 - In the top right corner of the page you can select a language and have all the information about rail services and trains in English and in several other languages
 - For train connections, search directly on the starting page. You will have to enter your starting point and your destination, as well as the time at which you want to take the train.
 - Attention: When you type in "Ravensburg" as your destination, the program might ask you to specify the exact stop. Select/ type "Bahnhof, Ravensburg".
- Download the "DB-App" on your smartphone to be informed about possible current changes! <https://www.bahn.de/p/view/service/mobile/db-navigator.shtml>
- It is advisable to book the train tickets from your home country. They will be cheaper the earlier you book them in advance. Book the tickets for the train at a time around 2.5 - 3 hrs after your arrival by plane, in case there is a flight delay or any other issues you're facing.
- Pay attention to changes in departure tracks and times. Do not wait for a long time when you reach the track without checking again whether any changes have been made. Also check when you get on the train.
- Check if you have sufficient time for changing onto the connecting trains. Delays unfortunately occur quite frequently and must be taken into account.
- If you miss a train, take the next one going to the same destination. However, it is very likely that the train will depart from a different track. Don't just stop and wait, please inform yourself via the DB App or ask somebody around.
- Try to make sure that your train ticket is not only valid for a specific train connection/number (best case), otherwise it will no longer be valid after you missed that connection. In case this happens to you, please go to the DB information points. It is always a good idea to have somebody sign or stamp that you missed a train/ that a train was cancelled or delayed etc. and that you are "officially allowed" to take another train than the one specified on your ticket.
- Be in the right place at the track before the train arrives.
- At the moment delays are quite frequent for rail connections in Germany, DB is trying to improve, so please do not be too bothered by that.

- If you don't understand an announcement, don't be afraid to ask someone around you.
- Please be in contact with your friends and/ or your student buddies to inform them about any issues/ delays you might have. In the best case, you get an International Calling Card, such as Matrix etc. for a couple of days before you get your German mobile number. They are not that expensive. You can also use Local Hot-spots and WiFi connections.

You can also travel with a long-distance buses (Fernbus), you will find travel information on www.busliniensuche.de.

A well-known company with many connections both national and international is FlixBus: <https://global.flixbus.com/>. Please note though that these connections often take longer than by train but are usually cheaper than the train connection (if you do not have the Deutschland-Ticket).

1.4 Airports

There are several rail construction projects currently ongoing on the route between the airports and Ravensburg so that there might be rail replacement bus service (Schienersatzverkehr - SEV) on some routes. There are buses that will take you to the next possible stop.

1.4.1 Friedrichshafen (FDH)

In April 2024 Lufthansa stopped their flights between Frankfurt and Friedrichshafen, so currently this is no longer an option.

1.4.2 Stuttgart (STR)

Trains from Stuttgart Airport to Ravensburg run every hour. It takes normally between 2.5 and 3 hours and costs about € 30-40 (when there are constructions on the route it might take an hour more with a rail replacement bus service). A cheaper way to travel is to use the Baden-Württemberg-Ticket (please see "General information" above). You have to change train at Stuttgart Hbf (Hauptbahnhof = main station) and for most connections also at Ulm Hbf (more transitions if there are railway constructions!).

1.4.3 Munich (München) (MUC)

There are connections from Munich airport to Ravensburg every hour as well, but some are better than others. The best way is to take the local train S8 to München Pasing, get a train from there to Ulm and then change in Ulm to a train to Ravensburg. This journey takes 3 to 3.5 hours and costs up to € 50 (when there are constructions on the route it might take an hour more with a rail replacement bus service). A cheaper way to travel is to use a "Bayern-Ticket". You can travel with this ticket from Munich to Lindau for 29 € as a single person. In Lindau, you have to change the train and can journey on to Ravensburg for approx. € 10.

If you have a lot of luggage, try to avoid all connections via München Hbf (train station), because it is a very big station and it takes about 10 min. to walk from your point of arrival to your point of departure.

1.4.4 Zurich / Zürich, Switzerland (ZRH)

From Zürich airport, there are good connections by train to Ravensburg via Schaffhausen. If you have time and the weather is nice it certainly is the most beautiful way to get to Weingarten across the lake by ship or Katamaran (via Romanshorn and car ferry to Friedrichshafen or Constance and the Katamaran to Friedrichshafen). If you don't have time try to avoid connections which include ships to cross Lake Constance.

The journey takes 2.5 to 3 hours and costs around € 40. For all details about connections, also for Switzerland: <http://www.bahn.de>.

1.4.5 Frankfurt

From Frankfurt airport, there are connections by train to Ravensburg via Ulm. The journey takes 3.5 to 4 hours and costs around € 40. Currently there is no flight connection between Frankfurt and Friedrichshafen.

Please remember: There is no train station in Weingarten. If you indicate at the ticket counter that you want to go to Weingarten, you will arrive at another destination 250 km away. The correct train station for this Weingarten is Ravensburg!
